PRESS RELEASE

CANADIAN COMMERCIAL CORPORATION VISITS THE NEW QUITO INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT (NQIA) SITE

Quito, December 9, 2009 – The Canadian Commercial Corporation (CCC), the Government of Canada's international contracting and procurement agency and prime contractor for the construction of the New Quito International Airport (NQIA), visited the NQIA project site today. This visit coincided with the visit of Mayor of Quito, Dr. Augusto Barrera, and the Ambassador of Canada in Ecuador, Andrew Shisko, to the NQIA construction site.

The visit is part of CCC's ongoing monitoring program and demonstrates CCC's commitment to ensuring the NQIA is built according to the terms and conditions agreed to in the construction contract.

On behalf of Marc Whittingham (President and CEO of CCC), Jacques Greffe (Vice President of Contract Management and Procurement) stated that CCC is pleased that the Municipality, Quiport and the international Lenders have agreed on a clear path towards a mutually agreeable and timely solution that will ensure the New Quito International Airport is completed to the highest standards while also safeguarding the long-term investment and business relationships between Canada and Ecuador.

CCC is the Government of Canada's international contracting and procurement agency, with contracts in place with governments around the world. More information about CCC is available at www.ccc.ca. More information about the NQIA project is available at www.ccc.ca/quito.
