Canada's G2G for DoD

As Canada's foreign military sales agency, we are funded by the Government of Canada to:

Strengthen Canada-U.S. defence procurement cooperation

Under the U.S.-Canada Defence Production Sharing Agreement (1956).

Expand DoD's access to the North American supply base

Enhance DoD access to products and services from Canadian industry.

Reduce barriers to the contracting process

Enable DoD buyers to purchase from Canadian sources.

Canada and the U.S. enter into government to government (G2G) agreements, similar to the foreign military sales program, to support U.S. and Canadian security interests, and strengthen the North American defense industrial base and supply chain resiliency.

Advantages of Canada G2G

Guarantee of contract performance

Contractual provisions give same data rights

Contractual provisions ensure that the DoD receives the same rights for data and information related to production that would be normally obtained.

Reduce contract administration effort

CCC fulfills some Defense Contract Management Agency (DCMA) roles by providing price verification and performing assist audits. We also serve as the point of contact for DoD contracting officials and DCMA North America.
